Motorcyclist dies in collision

FATALITY A motorcyclist died early yesterday morning after he crashed his bike in Gloucester.

A security guard reported hearing a loud bang shortly before 1:30 a.m. He then discovered a motorcycle on the lawn near 5420 Canotek Rd. and a man lying nearby.

The collisions unit of the Ottawa police and paramedics were called to the scene, where the man was pronounced dead.

Next-of-kin had yet to be notified yesterday and police were still withholding the name of the 36-year-old Ottawa man.

The road was closed until approximately 6 a.m. for the investigation into the collision.

Medal hauled to the Hall

Group surrenders Order of Canada to GG to protest Morgentaler

tracey.tong@metronews.ca

Members of a Catholic community yesterday returned an Order of Canada medal its founder received 32 years ago, to protest a high-profile abortionist's receipt of the award.

Representatives from Madonna House in Combermere arrived at Rideau Hall to return Catherine Doherty's 1976 medal in response to Dr. Henry Morgentaler's recent appointment to the order, joining a priest in British Columbia who has also surrendered his award in protest.

"Our purpose was to make a simple public gesture to call attention to the disgrace and disappointment of the awarding of the medal to Dr. Morgentaler,"

"The medal has been dishonoured."

Director Susanne Stubbs, Madonna House said Susanne Stubbs, a director with the community of more than 200 laymen and priests that assists the poor.

"The medal has been dishonoured."

Doherty, who died in 1985, was added to the Order for "devoted services to the underprivileged of many nationalities, both in Canada and abroad." Consideration for her sainthood began in 2000.

Stubbs and her colleagues returned the medal and its accompanying document to Yves Bastien, an awards official who emerged from Rideau Hall to receive it.

Mark Schlengerman, a director general of the Catholic group Madonna House, holds an Order of Canada medal that was awarded to the group's late founder, Catherine Doherty, outside the front gates of Rideau Hall yesterday.

Officials refused comment.

"Catherine Doherty would not have judged Henry Morgentaler, nor should we. Yet we have to protest — simply, peacefully, unremittingly and with the tools we have at hand — the serious misdirection our country (is taking)," director general of laymen Mark Schlengerman read from a letter the group sent to Governor General Michaëlle Jean, who named Morgentaler for Canada's highest civilian honour.

The medal was returned after consultation with the community, said director David May.

"It was a sad decision and we took it very seriously," said Schlengerman. "It was hers and ours and surrendering it was very hard."

The Canada Day abduction of a woman in Vanier has led to the arrests of three men and a youth, city police reported yesterday.

Manock Achuil Lual, Manock Agak Lual, both age 21, and Stephane Letourneau, age 34, along with a youth, are accused of holding a woman captive after she allegedly helped arrange a drug deal that went wrong.

The suspects face a raft of charges, including assault with a weapon, kidnapping, and extortion after Ottawa Police made arrests in the case between July 2 and yesterday. The accused appear in court tomorrow.

According to Det. Randy Wagner with Ottawa Police's Major Crime-Robbery Unit, four suspects allegedly chased down and assaulted a woman after she reportedly connected them with a drug dealer who sold them fake drugs.

The suspects are accused of then confining the woman against her will, in an effort to get their money back.

Wagner said the woman managed to escape and notify police.

The woman sustained multiple bruises and lacerations and was treated at hospital and released without charges.

Cool Canada could be hot ticket

tim.wieclawski@metronews.ca

It's about the best hockey that'll be played anywhere this summer, but it could be tough to get a seat.

To gear up for the 2009 IIHF World Junior Championships in Ottawa, the Canadian national junior hockey team announced yesterday it will hold a summer development camp at the University of Ottawa starting July 25, with games to begin two days later.

Team practices will be free to the public, but admission will be charged for three red-and-white games that could become a hot ticket at a campus arena that holds just 850 people.

"We're bringing togeth-

er the top 45 young players in the country and they take this very seriously," said tournament general manager Bob O'Doherty, adding that games can take on playoff-like intensity as players battle for the coach's eye.

Gatineau Olympiques head coach Benoit Groulx is Canada's bench boss. He said it's exciting to make the drive for five straight titles in Canada, but having games at home won't make the job any easier.

"When you coach this team you know the expectations are high," he said. "It's something you have to be prepared to face."

Canada has 10 returning players from the 2007-08 championship team. And while Groulx expects all 10 at camp, he said it's too soon to speculate on the roster.

"It all depends who is going to stay in the NHL," he said.

Former Binghamton Senators head coach Dave Cameron, currently coaching St Michael's, and Willie Desjardins, the head coach in Medicine Hat, are Groulx's assistant coaches.

Canada starts the tourney against the Czech Republic at Scotiabank Place on Dec. 26.

Frank Vanderlaan, project engineer with the Ministry of Transportation, stands in front of one of the new overpasses that will replace the Queensway's Clyde Avenue bridge in August.

Jiffy lift brings crowds to bridge

tim.wieclawski@metronews.ca

A technique that makes bridge lifts a jiff has become a spectator sport of sorts in Ottawa.

As it did last year when it replaced the Queensway's Island Park Drive overpass in a single day, the Ministry of Transportation will set up bleachers for the public to watch workers pop out and replace the Clyde Avenue bridge next month.

"We had hundreds of people come out and watch at various times last year, and we'll be putting up bleachers again. We'll also be setting up webcams," said MTO engineer Frank Vanderlaan.

Construction on the new

"We had hundreds of people come out and watch."

MTO engineer

overpass sections began in April at a municipal snow dump on Clyde Avenue, but the actual replacement will begin on Aug 2 at 6 p.m., when a modular transporter will lift out the existing, 650-tonne overpasses, then ease in new ones. The Queensway should reopen by noon the next day.

The technology is increasingly being employed across Canada and Vanderlaan said MTO plans to use the same technique to replace bridges over Carling and Kirkwood avenues, and Merivale Road.

The short changeover makes for minimal traffic disruption compared to traditional bridge work.

But Clyde Ave. will not be a true replacement. The new sections going in will be five metres wider than the existing ones, which posed more challenges than the previous operation.

"Accommodating the widened portion with the existing structure required a different approach," said structural designer Michel Vachon, with the McCormick Rankin Corp.

Vachon said the support girders don't line up on the new sections, like they did for Island Park.

The new bridges cost $9.6 million and are expected to have a lifespan of 75 years.

Police Arson Squad and Ottawa Fire Services are investigating.

TOXINS A HAZMAT unit was called to the scene of a grow-op bust yesterday after two police officers were exposed to a chemical substance. Two Ottawa Police tactical team officers searching a Century Road West house were exposed to a substance that caused rash and irritation. The HAZMAT unit was called in and the officers were decontaminated. The substance was determined to be fertilizer. Police said no arrests had been made.

Roughing it doesn't get much rougher

Why did I ever agree to go camping?

CityScapes

Tracey Tong

tracey.tong@metronews.ca

A diehard city slicker, I've been camping exactly once in my life. And it was a disaster.

My mind has blocked much of the painful memory, so I can't remember why I agreed to go camping on an island accessible only by a 10-minute motorboat ride.

For three days, I didn't shower. I brushed my teeth with bottled water, ate only granola bars, slopped new layers of insect repellent and sunscreen over the old and learned to pee in the bushes. When I finally showered upon my return, the water that flowed down the drain — I kid you not — ran black.

I still shudder at how dirty I got, but lately I've been thinking about giving camping a second chance. And who better to ask for advice than a professional outdoorsman?

Ottawa's Bob Abrames spends most of his summers living as people did 300 years ago. That means up to 100 days of surviving on salt pork (ick), no tents, no showers, no bug spray and no toothbrushes.

A rabid fan of dental hygiene, I recoiled in horror. "I use baking soda on my finger to clean my teeth," said Abrames. "It's a long way from a toothbrush but it changes the taste a little bit." That's not the worst of it.

Bob Abrames

He also goes without toilet paper. This time, I gasp audibly. I love toilet paper. To me, it's such a necessity that I don't even bother taking it for granted.

But for Abrames, roughing it means celebrating nature.

"Life today has become extremely complicated, extremely fast and extremely technical. Getting back into the bush brings you back to what life's about."

With camping, you can be as extreme or conservative as you want. There are ways of spending time outdoors, while also enjoying a few comforts of home. The most important thing is just to get out there, he said.

A flashlight, a cell phone for emergencies, a first-aid kit, "the best poncho you can buy," and modern freeze-dried foods are camping musts.

But you have to count on some hardships. When it comes to answering the call of nature in nature, for example, it's just not going to be pretty.

Abrames suggests carrying a trowel "to dig a hole for your business. It decomposes very quickly."

The most admirable thing about Abrames is what he gives up to rough it. When not in the bush, he lives a comfortable, cell-phone using existence in a downtown condo. I'm sure it's not easy leaving that behind. Still, he misses very little.

"I miss pizza," he said. "And the first thing I do when I get back is brush my teeth — it's very high on the list."

"It's the simple pleasures in life that make you appreciate what you have."

'Yellow bag' program meant to ease landfills

RECYCLING A City of Ottawa committee says it hopes a new program to encourage business, industry and institutions to recycle more of their waste will help divert garbage from the capital's crowded landfills.

While industry and commercial business account for about 70 per cent of all waste, only about 150 out of 26,000 businesses in the capital currently participate in a municipal "yellow bag" program that picks up garbage and recycling for a fee.

Businesses that don't participate in the program have their garbage picked up by private companies and dumped into private landfills.

"We can't mandate that they do anything other than to control what comes in to the system," said Albert Shames of Ottawa Waste Services.

Terry Scott of Spaceman Music says his shop goes through about 200 pounds of cardboard per week and it would be foolish not to participate in a recycling program.

"In these days, I mean it's just silly not to (recycle)," he said.

Shames says it's only a matter of time before private disposal facilities see the value in waste diversion. In the meantime, Shames says the city is a long way from meeting their waste diversion target.

"The diversion of the industry and commercial waste is a little bit below 20 per cent," he said. "I think we're targeting 60 per cent ... we've got a ways to go."

But analysts said the agreement was badly weakened because it does not stipulate a base year to measure the extent of emissions reductions need-

Harper lauded the accord as an "important advance" because U.S. President George W. Bush

Remembering the last to fall

Veterans perform Halifax memorial for HMCS Esquimalt

BY PAUL MCLEOD
Metro Canada

It's been 63 years since the last Canadian ship to be sunk in World War II, the HMCS Esquimalt, went down outside of Halifax.

Yesterday survivors of the ship, their rescuers, and one of the crew of the German submarine that sank the Esquimalt all gathered for a memorial on the ocean near Chebucto Head.

"We heard a big explosion. Next thing you knew you were in the water," recalls George Taylor, who was 19 when the Esquimalt was hit by a torpedo April 16, 1945.

He climbed aboard a nearby life raft and waited about 5½ hours before he and his surviving shipmates were rescued by the HMCS Sarnia.

Lou Howard, left, looks on as his one-time enemy, Werner Hirschmann, prepares to throw a wreath overboard to commemorate the last Canadian ship sunk during World War II, on behalf of the German submarine that sank it.

"The last time I was in this spot the engines stopped and I was scared skinny," said Sarnia navigating officer Lou Howard, 21 years old then and 84 now.

"We were a sitting duck and we knew there were torpedoes out there. But we had a job to do and we did it. Then as soon as we got them onboard, full speed ahead."

In total, 27 men were saved, while 13 perished.

After a prayer service was done on the navy tug yesterday, three wreaths were thrown overboard into the ocean.

One simply said, "Wish we could have got there sooner."

The U.S. and Czech foreign ministers toasted with champagne after signing the accord to place a tracking radar southwest of Prague as part of a system to protect against the perceived threat of missile attack from countries such as Iran.

Stanley mistaken as ashtray by partygoers

So the Stanley Cup was used as — brace yourself — an ashtray by party animals on Malibu Beach.

No joke.

U.S. musician Kid Rock had a wild July 4 bash in which invited members of the NHL champion Detroit Red Wings left the Cup out on the beach, where "people mistook the trophy for an ashtray," according to the New York Daily News. And before you decide to dismiss the information as nonsense emanating from an unreliable rag, keep in mind that it was the same paper that disclosed the extra-marital habits of Yankees third baseman Alex Rodriguez and his pending divorce, many of which have been confirmed.

Seems the future Hall of Famer has had a thing for skanky chicks — no offence to fans of 49-year-old entertainer Madonna, who's been rumoured as A-Rod's latest lover.

Boston stripper Candice Houlihan told reporters she had a two-night stand with A-Rod in 2004 and that the player's wife, Cindy Rodriguez, "did the right thing" by filing for divorce. "A leopard doesn't change his spots," said Houlihan, a hairdresser these days. "Good for her. I think she's doing the smart thing."

Houlihan added: "And she'll probably get tons of cash."

And I add: "Duh."

• Members of the 0-2 Winnipeg Blue Bombers are peeved at their coach, Doug Berry, who's been accusing them of enjoying the Montreal night life too much before they were crushed by the Alouettes last week ... Members of the 1-1 Toronto Argonauts are peeved at their coach, Rich Stabler, because they've decided he lacks communication skills as well as general knowledge about offensive football ... There's a quiet quarterback controversy in B.C., where members of the 0-2 Lions think Buck Pierce is a better choice than Jarius Jackson, who was ineffective and noticeably nervous against the Saskatchewan Roughriders last week. The Lions are 2.5-point underdogs for their game in Winnipeg Friday night ... Damon Allen is a retired grandfather at 45, but he's let it be known throughout the CFL that he's willing and eager to return to any team in need of a quarterback.

The Jays are dangling not only pitcher A.J. IOC ruling means softball player from B.C. likely facing her final Olympics

for Metro Canada

Growing up in Trail, B.C., a small nature city with a matching population, there was little for Lauren Bay to do besides play sports.

She played many — basketball, volleyball, track, gymnastics — but it was in the ballpark with her older brother Jason that she found her true calling.

Bay, who originally hoped to be a centre-fielder before discovering her true talent at pitching, grew up to be one of the country's top softball pitchers, representing Canada at the Olympic Games.

Jason grew up to be an outfielder for Major League Baseball's Pittsburgh Pirates. Athleticism is clearly in the family's blood, Bay's grandparents Sylvia and Arthur also played ball, her uncle Gerry Moro was a three-time Olympian in decathlon, and her father David played little league.

Kelly Bay, Lauren's mother, said her daughter always had a knack for the sport, but her accomplishments have been no less amazing.

"We didn't imagine it would take her where she's gotten — I don't think anyone could have imagined that — but we're certainly thankful and grateful that it has," she said.

When Bay was 16, she got a call from the White Rock Renegades.

"They were known as the powerhouse of my generation and that was a pretty big deal to even have a phone call from them," said Bay. Her parents, whom she called "saints," drove her nearly eight hours every weekend while school was in session to get her to home games.

The athletic girl with a competitive nature caught the eye of a handful of universities. Among them was Oklahoma State, which she ended up choosing for its welcoming sense of southern hospitality.

At OSU, Bay studied international business and became a stand-out while playing ball, posting a 26-10 record as a senior in 2003 and striking out 451 to break her single-season record.

In 2002, Bay was part of the Canadian softball team that placed ninth at the World Championships in Saskatoon, and in 2004, was part of the Canadian team that placed fifth at the summer Olympics in Athens.

In August, Bay will again be one of the 15 players to represent our home and native land in softball at the Olympic Games in Beijing, where her parents and husband will be present to cheer her on.

"When that anthem starts and you look around and see everyone wearing red and white, you just swell up with a sense of pride and awe that your daughter is one of the chosen few who gets to represent that country," said Kelly Bay. "How many people can say that?"

However, Sylvia Bay

SCOTT BARBOUR/GETTY IMAGES

added the trip will be bittersweet for Lauren.

"She's looking forward to it, because this will probably be her last one," she said, referring to the International Olympic Committee's vote to remove softball and baseball from the Games effective 2012. These are the first two sports to be cut since polo was voted out in 1939.

Bay called the cut "heartbreaking" and said that she will work with various organizations to bring it back once the bustle of the Games dies down.

"Growing up of having a goal to play softball in the Olympics ... it's heartbreaking to know that, as of right now, no more softball players will be able to follow their dreams in that aspect."

The IOC will vote again in 2009.

Avenger flexes muscle

Dodge model brings bad boy attitude to mid-size car segment

B. MCCLAUCHLAN
for Metro Canada

Leave it to the "grab life by the horns" boys over at Dodge to inject a little "attitude" into the mid-size car segment with its new-for-2008 Avenger five-passenger sedan.

All muscular and aggressive, thanks to styling cues borrowed straight from the brand's full-size Charger model, the 2008 Avenger actually shares its platform and most of its mechanical bits with its corporate cousin, the Chrysler Sebring.

The Avenger's styling and materials look and feel better than the Sebring, though that's no reason for any competitors to consider reworking their own offerings. On the other hand, features-wise, the Avenger is a leader, offering the automaker's MyGIG multimedia audio and entertainment system with available navigation, Chill Zone cooled storage compartment above the glove box, heated and cooled cupholders (except on the base Avenger SE) and an available rear-seat DVD entertainment system.

As with the Sebring, the Avenger offers three trim levels. In the latter's case that means the base Avenger SE starting at $20,495, followed by a mid-range SXT version with a $22,595 sticker price and the range-topping Avenger R/T with a $27,395 entry fee.

In its SE trim the Avenger comes with a 173 horsepower, 2.4-litre four-cylinder engine and four-speed automatic transmission, standard side-curtain airbags, four-speaker AM/FM stereo with CD/MP3 player, tilt and telescopic steering wheel, power locks and mirrors, air conditioning, 60/40-split rear seat and 16-inch wheels and tires.

The SXT with a similar powertrain adds anti-lock brakes, the company's YES Essentials stain resistant seat fabric, a power eight-way driver's seat, six-speaker audio system, fold-flat passenger seatback, Touring suspension and 17-inch alloy wheels.

The New Dodge Challenger is all muscular and aggressive, thanks to styling cues borrowed from the brand's Charger model.

2008 Dodge Avenger SE

- Type: Mid-size 5-pass sedan FWD
- Price: $20,495
- Engine: 2.4L I4 DOHC
- HP: 173 @ 6,000 rpm
- Torque: 166 @ 4,400 rpm

Highlights:

- Muscular 'Charger-inspired' styling
- Available Flex Fuel engine
- Available all-wheel-drive
- Chill Zone drink cooler

The R/T is equipped with a 235 hp, 3.5-litre V6 mated to a six-speed automatic. It also gets a sport-tuned suspension and bigger brakes to improve handling and stopping, along with interior upgrades in keeping with its top-of-the-line status. An all-wheel-drive R/T is also available, carrying a $30,895 suggested list price.

The Avenger interior looks nice enough with a two-tone motif, white-face gauges, bright trim and easy-to-operate controls.

The Avenger interior looks nice enough with a two-tone motif, bright trim and easy-to-operate controls.

Finding a comfortable driving position is easy with the tilt and telescoping steering wheel and adjustable driver's seat.

On the road, the four-cylinder engine's performance is perky enough for most needs while the ride quality is smooth on the highway and quiet around town.

Toyota, Nissan reduce prices

Canadian car buyers looking to save some bucks behind the wheel of a new vehicle can take advantage of new, lower prices on several Toyota models.

The reductions range from $1,350 to $7,900 depending on the model.

Three 2008-model Toyotas have been reduced: RAV4 buyers save $1,350 on the new manufacturer's suggested list price (MSRP) of $26,050 — down from the previous MSRP of $27,400. The Prius hybrid sedan drops by $1,900 to its new MSRP of $27,600 while the '08 Highlander is now $34,900 for a saving of $2,000.

On a similar note, Nissan has announced the 2009 Armada's pricing will be reduced by $10,000 for a new MSRP of $53,298 while the '09 Titan sees reductions of up to $1,500 on both the Crew Cab and King Cab pickup trucks. Also Infiniti's 2009 FX35 drops $4,350 to $50,700 while there's a $9,900 saving awaiting buyers of the QX56 seven- and eight-passenger SUVs.

New Lexus prices

Eight of the Toyota's upscale Lexus models have also seen price reductions, ranging from $1,400 for the 2008 RX series to $7,900 on the sporty SC

Disney ups the ante

Toy Story Mania! is one of new key attractions

FERNANDO CARNEIRO
fernando.carneiro@metronews.ca

You can play video games at home. Or you can be in the video game at Disney's newest ride, Toy Story Mania! Dubbed a 4-D adventure, the newest addition to both DisneyWorld in Florida and Disney's California Adventure in Anaheim, Calif. takes park goers through a series of virtual midway games led by the film's lead characters, Buzz Lightyear and Woody.

It keeps score, it's addictive and according to John Lasseter, chief creative officer of Pixar and Walt Disney Animation, this ride is exactly what Disney hoped for. "We wanted to create an attraction that was so fun, as soon as it's over you want to get back on again," Lasseter said. Sitting side-by-side and armed with spring-action shooters you launch virtual projectiles ranging from darts to midway rings at 3-D targets.

And yes, it can be tough on the firearms so stretch first.

Everything reacts to you, balloons burst showering you with virtual confetti and when rockets take flight directly at you, a perfectly timed blast of air lets you feel them whirl by.

They're so real, that several people were seen trying to touch the images.

And in each of the games, there is at least one "Easter egg" — a target that can trigger the appearance of bonus, high-value targets and other changes in the scene.

What makes this ride so addictive is the desire to improve your score and — more importantly — to beat the person beside you.

The only thing keeping people from riding Toy Story Mania! repeatedly on opening day was a lineup stretching halfway across Californialand.

But that's a testament to people's love affair with the characters from Toy Story. To soothe the wait, Disney created a giant Mr. Potato Head that acts as a carnival barker. It's able to say several lines of dialogue to people in line as well as remove a body part (his ear) and re-attach it.

According to Lasseter, Toy Story Mania! is the first installment of a $1.1 billion, five-year plan to upgrade Disney's California Adventure, which opened in 2001. He said the next Disney movie to be turned into a ride will be Cars (2006).

Cosplay it again

In the bowels of Taipei, beneath a bridge where homeless men nestle-in for a good night's sleep, there's a simple community centre. From the outside, it doesn't look like much but inside, the Infinitive Cosplay Theatre have gathered, eager to strut their imaginative hobby. There's an energy in the air as they get ready for this evening's practice.

The girls dab themselves with thick white powder, red face paint and a thick coat of black mascara. They fiddle with heavy wigs, adjust their robes and slip into character.

They are Cosplayers, a growing sub-culture of Taiwan's young generation. Cosplay, a combination of "costume" and "play," has people dressing up as their favourite fictional characters.

Rooted in Asia, this popular trend has found its way around the world, including Canada. For the most part, costumes are inspired by Japanese anime and manga characters, but in Taiwan, the local youth have put their own spin on it.

Cosplayers dress as characters from PiLi Puppet Theatre, a traditional performance of wooden hand-puppets. This cultural phenomenon re-enacts Chinese legends of love, chivalry and heroism through the art of puppetry.

Though the hobby may be growing in popularity, it certainly isn't cheap, with costumes, fans, staffs and wigs costing an upwards of 21,000 Taiwan dollars ($700 Canadian).

Since the characters are copy-written, costumes aren't found in stores. You have to either make one yourself, or have it specially made-to-order by one of the few professionals in the city. Myao Ju Sheun Hwa has spent an upwards of 50,000 ($1600 Canadian) this year on her Cosplay hobby.

By day, she's a secretary at a local shipping company, by night, this 34-year-old dresses as a female goddess, donning a sheer gown and elaborate wig adorned with tulips. She is drawn to this PiLi character because "of her very kind and powerful personality." Myao talks about the puppet characters with familiarity and affection, admiring their loyalty, good looks and martial arts skills. Her addiction to PiLi Puppet Theatre first started when she was a little girl, watching it on T.V. Her love of this Taiwanese theatre caused her to join a fan club, where she met other like-minded addicts. It's from this fan club that spawned the Infinitive Cosplay theatre.

With over 10 people in the group, the team practices their routines three days a week.

To the tune of wind chimes and a pan flute, they move about the space in a collective performance, re-enacting mock battles from ancient Chinese dynasties.

Their dance is interpretive. Their movements are carefully choreographed, with elements of kung fu.

Imagination takes these Cosplayers far from the urban reality of their humble surroundings.

Julia Dimon co-hosts Word Travels, airing on OLN, and edits The Travel Junkie. She can be reached through www.thetraveljunkie.ca.

Ever wondered what's out there? Or in there? Or even, under there?

Generations of moviegoers have. With Friday's release of Journey To The Center Of The Earth, the next generation of movie fans can explore other worlds.

"It already recalls something like Jurassic Park, where there's this notion of an unknown world that is discovered unwittingly," said Charlie Keil, director of the cinema studies institute at the University of Toronto. "It has both the elements of exploration and suspense and surprise because of the various obstacles the explorers are going to find."

Getting a new perspective is a movie tradition. You've probably never seen Trip To The Moon from 1902, but perhaps you've heard the phrase Where No Man Has Gone Before.

The Star Trek series started on the small screen, but went big in 1979. The new take of Journey To The Center Of The Earth, starring Brendan Fraser, is a modern spin on an old story. A 1959 version of the film starred Pat Boone. Both are based on the Jules Verne book published in 1864.

Journey To The Center Of The Earth takes a fresh look at the tradition of exploration on the big screen.

But our exploration fascination doesn't have to be on a grand scale.

Who could forget Hamilton's Martin Short cruising around in a li'l ship inside Dennis Quaid in 1987's In- nerspace? Or Toronto's Rick Moranis as the flustered father in 1989's Honey, I Shrunk The Kids?

"You could say it's the same formula inverted, in a way," Keil said. "Rather than being exposed to something larger than expected, like a whole new world ... cinema can show you things you didn't think were there ... things that are suddenly magnified so we experience them differently."

Keil says one of the rules of exploration movies is the effectively melding "spectacle and narrative." He expects moviegoers will keep flocking to theatres to see what surprises are in store.

"Oh definitely. With (Journey), it's being linked to the burgeoning re-exploration of the capacities of new 3D technologies ... everyone is saying the new 3D technology is really quite convincing. So this kind of narrative will suit that technology to a T."

CD boxed sets face uncertain future

MUSIC Have boxed sets lost their commercial luster, or can the configuration still shine when managed properly? Only a handful of enticing boxed sets are due out at year's end. Among them are Rhino's long-in-the-works four-disc Jesus and Mary Chain collection, The Power of Negative Thinking: B-Sides & Rarities; the label's multi-disc Jane's Addiction box, which is being supervised by drummer Stephen Perkins; and anthologies from Rob Zombie, Nina Simone, Roy Orbison, Dolly Parton and Hall & Oates.

One of the most in-demand items is Neil Young's eternally delayed Archives Vol. 1, which will come out only on Blu-ray and not on standard CDs, but it remains unclear if it will finally see the light of day by year's end.

"Boxed-set sales have fallen off the cliff; they went from something to nothing," says Bryan Everitt, director of music purchasing at Hastings Entertainment.

Everitt adds labels need to cut the prices of boxed sets. "Unless the majors seriously look at reducing the price of the boxed set — they still think they should cost US $39.98 or $49.98 — sales will continue to slide."

Mike Davis, executive VP/GM of Universal Music Enterprises, says that in response to those very concerns, the reissue specialist has launched a new series, Playlist Plus.

It offers three discs at an affordable price, packaged in a Digipak inside a slipsleeve without any booklets. Retail sources say the series carries a list price of $29.99 and a boxset of $19.58. Acts appearing in the series include the Temptations, Rod Stewart, Marvin Gaye, James Brown, the Allman Brothers Band, the Moody Blues, Kiss and the Velvet Underground.

Swingtown tries to hold its ground

GOING DOWN SWINGING:

ABC's ardent shot at putting quality cable programming in network prime time isn't going over so well with either critics or advertisers. Swingtown debuted just over a month ago in the unenviable summer slot that once meant contractual obligation and sure death for a show before HBO and Showtime began launching shows in the torrid months, and the subject matter — the games of sexual chicken adults played with each other in

IntelleVision

"It is a shame," a media buyer told the magazine. "When the networks try to push the envelope a little and try to be more like HBO, the advertisers run away."

The closest thing to a rave

the greasy aftermath of the '60s — was supposed to see the transplanting of risqué cable content to primetime. Monday saw an Advertising Age story about the show getting stiffed by advertisers, who want to capture the attention of younger viewers, but are still afraid of alienating the older ones who — as recent studies have shown — are still network television's biggest viewer demographic.

Matthew Gilbert in the Boston Globe, who says that after four episodes, it's "almost really good, or, said differently, good enough to reveal how really good it could be." Peter Ames Carlin is a little less lukewarm in his Idiot Box column in the Portland Oregonian (great name for a TV column by the way). Carlin calls the show a "disaster," while admitting that, as a child of the '70s, he really wanted it to work. He complains about the music first of all, and he's right — given a choice between something really interesting and the most obvious Top 40 shorthand for the era, the show goes for the latter. Even when they shoehorn a Dylan song into the story, it's the painfully obvious — and 12-year-old — It Ain't Me, Babe.

Susan and Bruce Miller (Molly Parker and Jack Davenport) in a scene from Swingtown.

By 1976, there were 17

Dylan albums that could have been mined for a song, including the painfully apt Blood On The Tracks, which was only a year old at the time. Ditto for You Can't Always Get What You Want by the Rolling Stones — overused a long time ago as a quick, anthemic fix of adrenaline for too many soundtracks.

But the big problem is the characterization. Carlin points out the swinging Tom and Trina barely register as real people — Grant Show's Tom is really just a delivery system for his moustache. Bruce and Susan — the emotional core of the show, in theory — don't sell their sudden urge to spice up their marriage with a bit of spouse-swapping with any real success, mostly because they don't really seem all that into Tom or Trina, and as Susan's nagging nemesis, Miriam Shor's Janet is all shrew, all the time. Sensing that her prim disapproval was getting wearing, they got her wasted on pot brownies in episode four and practically remade the character between commercial breaks.

Finally, Carlin is right that the kids are the most interesting characters, probably because the people who created it were kids in the first year of the Carter presidency, when the adults were acting like kids and the kids felt positively middle-aged with prescient anxiety, but that might be too little, too late.
